Drugs in Society

Causes, Concepts and Control, 6e

Michael D. Lyman

This work focuses on the many critical areas of America's drug problem, providing a foundation for rational decision-making within this complex and multidisciplinary field. Divided into three sections—Understanding the Problem, Gangs and Drugs, and Fighting Back—topics covered include the business of drugs and the role of organized crime in the drug trade, drug legalization and decriminalization, legal and law enforcement strategies, an analysis of the socialization process of drug use and abuse, and a historical discussion of drug abuse that puts the contemporary drug problem into perspective. It offers thoughtful analysis of the diverse perspectives on dealing with the impact of drug use and drug trafficking on America society and provides a close look at the growing influence of Mexican cartels on the drug-trafficking landscape and the impact of their activity in and around the U.S. border.

Ethics in Criminal Justice

In Search of the Truth, 5e

Sam S. Souryal

Introducing the fundamentals of ethical theory, this text exposes the reader to the ways and means of making moral judgments by covering the teachings of the great philosophers, sources of criminal justice ethics and unethical patterns in the criminal justice system. It is presented from two perspectives: a thematic perspective that addresses ethical principles common to all components of the discipline, and an area-specific perspective that addresses the state of ethics in criminal justice in the fields of policing, corrections, and probation and parole.

The life is enhanced by a new chapter on civility in criminal justice. The book challenges the reader to emphasize and restore ethics in their part of the criminal justice field.

Deathquest

An Introduction to the Theory and Practice of Capital Punishment in the United States, 4e

Robert M. Bohm

This is an exhaustive introduction to the death penalty, starting with its history and taking the reader through the facts, issues, opinions and controversies surrounding capital punishment. The author's motivation has been to understand what motivates the "deathquest" of the American people, leading a large percentage of the public to support the death penalty. Two new chapters walk the reader through the challenges to the death penalty's legality and the treatment of capital punishment by the U.S. Supreme Court throughout the Modern (post-Furman) Period. Provocative discussion questions conclude every chapter.

Restoring Justice

An Introduction to Restorative Justice, 4e

Daniel W. Van Ness and Karen Heetderks Strong

Restoring Justice: An Introduction to Restorative Justice offers a clear and convincing explanation of restorative justice, a movement within criminal justice with growing worldwide influence. It explores the broad appeal of this new vision and offers a brief history of its development. The book presents a theoretical foundation for the principles and values of restorative justice and develops its four "cornerpost" ideas of encounter, amends, inclusion and reintegration. After exploring how restorative justice ideas and values may be integrated into policy and practice, it presents a series of key issues commonly raised about restorative justice, summarizing various perspectives on each.

Police Ethics

The Corruption of Noble Cause, Revised, 3e

Michael A. Caldero and John P. Crank

This book provides an examination of noble cause, how it emerges as a fundamental principle of police ethics, and how it can provide the basis for corruption. The noble cause — a commitment to "doing something about bad people" — is a central "ends-based" police ethic that can be corrupted when officers violate the law on behalf of personally held moral values. This book is about the power that police use to do their work and how it can corrupt police at the individual and organizational levels. It provides students of policing with a realistic understanding of the kinds of problems they will confront in the practice of police work.

Security Science

The Theory and Practice of Security

Clifton L. Smith and David J. Brooks

This book uniquely applies the scientific method to the challenge of preventing crime and foiling terrorist attacks. Incorporating the latest security theories and principles, it offers an approach to each core security function within the context of both organizational and homeland security. The book also helps define the emerging discipline of security science, integrating the multi-disciplined practice areas of security into a single structured body of knowledge.

Forensic Criminology

Wayne A. Petherick, Brent E. Turvey and Claire E. Ferguson

The scientific study of crime and criminals for the purposes of addressing investigative and legal issues, forensic criminology is a science, a behavioral science, and a forensic science. This text educates students regarding the nature and extent of forensic casework that is supported by, dependent upon, and interactive with research, theory, and knowledge derived from criminology. It is also a preliminary guide for practitioners working with and within related criminal justice professions — particularly those assisting investigations and legal proceedings or providing expert testimony.

Forensic Comparative Science

Qualitative Quantitative Source Determination of Unique Impressions, Images, and Objects
John Vanderkolk

While there is no such thing as a perfect match in the field of forensic comparative science, this book provides the experience, understanding, and judgment, necessary for concluding whether two unique images share common origin from a unique and persistent source. It presents a philosophical and theoretical approach to explaining the cognitive process of comparative measurements and source determination. Science is about understanding and generalizing nature. This book is about generalizing comparative science.
